"Twilight" Kills at Teen Choice Awards

by Bekah Wright August 10, 2009 02:34 PM EST

"Twilight" killed at the 11th annual Teen Choice 2009 awards Sunday. The vampire flick won 11 awards, including best drama and acting prizes for Robert Pattinson, Kristen Stewart, Cam Gigandet, Ashley Greene and Taylor Lautner. Pattinson also took home the honor of Male Hottie. Gossip Girl also received loads of surfboards, winning best TV drama and awards for Chace Crawford, Leighton Meester and Ed Westwick.

Kathy Griffin had a prize of her own. The D-List star walked arm-in-arm down the red carpet with Bristol Palin's ex-fiancé, Levi Johnston, announcing the couples' newfound amour. "We have a chemistry that's undeniable," she told TVGuideMagazine.com. "Our love affair has been going on for several minutes now." According to Griffin, Johnston isn't star-struck by Hollywood and feeling the urge to relocate. It's she who'll be trying out a new zip code. "I'm going to Wasilla tomorrow to start my new life," she says. "There's an open position there, that's all I'm going to say." How did the duo plan to celebrate their night at the Teen Choice Awards? "We'll probably get a pizza and go hunting."
